Grant: The Court of the Lord Lyon, 16th December 2000.
Lyon Register, volume 83, folio 88

The arms were designed by Mark Dennis with the advice of Peter Drummond-Murray of Mastrick, Slains Pursuivant, and Sir Malcolm Innes of Edingight.

Ernest John Altobello is, appropriately, baron-baillie of the barony of Blairgowrie, in the county of Perth, where his forebears, the Drummonds of Blair, occupied Newton Castle in the 1500's and 1600's. Sir William Macpherson of Cluny, the current baron of Blair (Blairgowrie), and occupant of Newton Castle, appointed Mr. Altobello to this post in the year 2000.

The arms are a composed coat deriving from Altobello and Drummond of Blair. The division, parted per chevron, recognizes and celebrates both families. The Altobello portion, in canting fashion, alludes to a high, beautiful, silver mountain surmounted by a tower against a blue sky; in base, the heart of the silver mountain, is the Drummond of Blair arms, three wavy red bars, each charged with a gold escallop, all on a gold field, which commemorate matrilineal descent from Drummond of Blair. The escallops were added to the Drummond coat when George Drummond of Blair matriculated his arms (volume I, page 285, circa 1672) and recognized his connection with Graham of Gorthy.

The sleuth hound refers to the original crest of the Drummonds of Cargill and Stobhall. The motto, "Higher Still," is inspired by the name Altobello.

Grant: The Court of the Lord Lyon, 18th September 2009. Register, volume 89, folio 42.

In 2009, Theodore Emerson “Ted” Campbell matriculated ancestral arms for his third great grandfather Jabez Campbell who was born in the British Province of New York and went on to purchase a 95-acre farm in what is now the State of New York’s Delaware County. Ted’s son Paul Drake Campbell proposed the designs for the ancestral grant and Ted’s differenced matriculation. Lyon Sellar approved of both.

Beginning with the Campbell gyronny of eight Or and Sable, Paul chose an agricultural theme for the crest and differencing the coat on the idea that Jabez might have selected this. There are two garbs to represent Ted and his cousin Robert who also received a matriculation in 2009.

Paul’s love of books prompted him to commission a Gordon Macpherson bookplate adding the appropriate label of three points to the coat. Paul was Editor of the Journal of Clan Campbell Society (North America) from 2008 through 2011 often writing about Campbell heraldry, and he was also the editor of Sir Ilay Campbell’s 2011 release Some Campbell Heraldic Bookplates.
